Charter school analyst speaks at conference

Bruce Bean, data analyst for the Community Day Charter School of Lawrence, represented Massachusetts at the conference hosted by the Charter School Growth Fund.

Bean was one of 19 panelists from across the country who discussed the formulation of the Community Partners Initiative. The program provides educators professional development to help improve student achievement through the integration of curriculum and student test data.

"CPI has developed a remarkable program to create educational plans that promote test achievement," Sheila Balboni, executive director of The Community Group Inc., said in a statement.

CPI is managed by The Community Group, a private, nonprofit organization that has delivered quality child-care and educational programs in Lawrence and its surrounding communities since 1970.
